

American Society for Cybernetics

The Warren McCulloch Award of the American Society for Cybernetics is awarded to

Paul Pangaro

for outstanding and profound lifelong contributions to the nurturing of cybernetics.

Paul Pangaro has been, for his working life,
a cybernetician in consulting and business.

There are few who have managed this,
but Pangaro has, using business opportunities to develop both his understanding of his professor Gordon Pask's Conversation Theory in real world applications and his own extensions, such as his interactive whitespace.

He has taught design from a cybernetic standpoint
and has supported the ASC in many ways, most recently as Chair of Trustees.

His studies in theatre are paraded for our benefit in wonderful, cybernetic performances.

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Ranulph Glanville".

Ranulph Glanville
President of the American Society for Cybernetics 2014/08/08